... and thirdly: The BARBARA Home Collection III is here

There are days when Barbara Schöneberger could clap everything on the wall – at least everything that can be found in her new BARBARA Home Collection. And above all, there are 40 new wallpaper designs that can easily carry anything: for example, exotic plants and lush leaf bouquets that are already proliferating now in her living room.

Or a noble Japanese motif, in which Barbara was inspired by a silk kimono from the Rijksmuseum. Fine silver and gold accents bring splendour and glamour into the home, with pink, petrol, curry yellow and khaki bringing exuberant zest for life... Oh yes, an antique carpet from Uzbekistan was also the inspiration for one of her wallpaper designs – Barbara would like to go up the walls. With happiness.

Home – a giant paint box

And off we go: There's this palette of vibrant colours, gentle nuances, handmade patterns and delicate plant motifs. Oh, the creative heart, it's time to run wild. It's a good thing that everything fits together so beautifully in the new Home Collection. And to this end, Barbara Schöneberger has chosen natural linen wallpapers and silky shimmering fabrics. Your own four walls? It should be 40!

Quiet is the new sound

How good it is time and again to enjoy nature in fresh pastel and shades of beige. Barbara Schöneberger creates her small oasis of peace in the middle of the urban jungle with elegant fern plants. Feet up, pure relaxation. And from your couch, you can wonderfully observe what flora and fauna have to offer: Suddenly, wild fluttering and cackling arises. A colourful swarm of Japanese cranes brings shimmering life to the place. How beautiful, because Ms Schöneberger really likes things to be a little rowdy.

THE NEW
DECO-LIFE-
BALANCE

Can you see a pattern here?

Barbara Schöneberger's thing is a successful mix of materials and colours. That's why her concrete can spread its cool charm just as much as a silk pattern from Uzbekistan, which in full size makes every wall a statement. Combined with finely coordinated curtains and cushions, it becomes a well-rounded affair – of course, never without spectacular corners and edges.

My very newest crush

Barbara Schöneberger can be inspired by designs from all over the world, so that it is always the most beautiful at home. Her crane motif was inspired, for example, by a Japanese silk kimono, which she discovered in the Rijksmuseum in Amsterdam. Now the cranes float through the room like light night thoughts and give their fantasy all the freedom they need.

An image of an image:

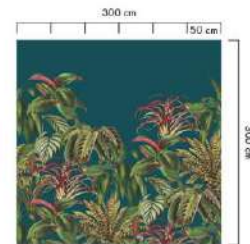

It's clear, Barbara Schöneberger has a motif. And here this motif becomes a tropical paradise – in full size and bright palette of colours. Can't you even hear the birds chirping? And the very best part: No matter how small or large the space – the paradise, it always finds its proper place in it.

Have you been looking for something in the countryside for a long time?

Such a view of nature always has a calming effect. And Barbara Schöneberger has something for you: a botanical fireworks plant that delights the urban heart in full splendour and nuances from light to rich. Yes but doesn't a garden like this take a lot of effort? Not at all: once placed on (the wall), it proves to be extremely easy to care for.
